After using Chat GPT to extract themes and classify the reviews' sentiments between positive, neutral, negative and mixed, as well as individually going through and hand labeling the review, we can draw several conclusions. Firstly, ChatGPT wasn't entirely accurate. As the reviews were mixed most of the time, AI had a hard time differentiating and accurately identifying the review's corresponding sentiment. After human verifying, and going through each review with thorough attention, we gathered precise data and classification. Mixed sentiment increased to 67%, Positive dropped to 15%, and most reviews contain both positive and negative sentiment. All in all, although the usage of AI is more time efficient, it might not always lead to accurate results.

SECTION 5:

Introduction

The reviews from Eleven Madison Park display more positive than negative perspectives on the restaurant, which reviewers attribute to excellent service and sub-par food quality, but many will agree that the food does not justify the price. Although maintaining a fine-dining standard, there are many reported problems that prevent customers from being completely satisfied. The subsequent points are suggestions based on the trends above to help meet customer expectations and assist the restaurant with competition.

Food Quality

The most important issue was food quality; there was a lot of feedback regarding over-salting and execution of dishes. While certain dishes were praised, there was clear dissatisfaction with the food. The restaurant can work on consistency by standardizing preparation and execution as well as quality control. All of these will help the restaurant achieve a Michelin star and satisfy the clientele.

Value

Based on customer feedback, perceptions of price-to-value ratio lean overwhelmingly negative, with many stating the experience doesn't justify the exorbitant charges. This becomes an even bigger issue when poor food quality threatens the customer experience, even with great customer service. High-value experiences improve overall evaluation in the luxury dining context which leads us to the conclusion that in order to sustain overall value in the experience, Eleven Madison Park should aim to improve overall value in the experience by improving the consistency of the food quality in the service dinner, including additional more unique elements to the dining experience, and partnering with more flexible restaurants which will help to address more of of the customer dining needs.

Experience & Personalization

While most described the experience as unique, many guests expressed dissatisfaction with the inability for personalization, especially for special occasions. Addressing the standardization, the homogenous take-away gifts added to the guests' loss of exclusivity. More personalization could engage the restaurants' customers' emotions, and create more memorable experiences, resulting in more satisfied customers

Service Improvements

Service has been consistently identified as a positive aspect for reviews. However, slow pacing, and a lack of attentiveness during busy times, were identified as areas of concern. Some reviews cited service as being technically competent, but lacking warmth. Consistency during busy times should be a priority for the restaurant. Improving warmth and engagement, combined with operational efficiency, would further bolster the restaurant's reputation for exceptional service.

Conclusion

Overall, Eleven Madison Park shows brilliance in service, with some obstacles in food uniformity and perceived value. With some targeted adjustments, some of the mixed sentiment could fade and the customer experience
